Planning for Retirement with Soul and Imagination

John P. Schuster and Patricia Kane

Dates: April 24 and May 1, & 8, 2014

Times: Thursdays, 6:30 pm - 8:30 pm

Location: First Community Church, South ~ 1320 Cambridge Blvd. ~ Columbus, OH 43212

Never in history have so many people lived long sections of life after they have given up their major career efforts. Experimentation is in the air for people who don't know whether to call themselves seniors or elders or grown-ups, and who are creating encore careers, or traveling and having more fun, or grandparenting mightily. Carl Jung addressed the psychology of the second half of life, and this workshop is aimed at how we apply these lessons over the multiple and soulful challenges and opportunities of the second half, last third, last quarter, or last fifth of life.

In this workshop, we will cover:

- managing the inevitable losses and taking advantage of the gains
- the role of imagination and courage when society is only partially helpful at best
- balancing adventure and duty; fun and weekly chores; self and friends; relationships and commitments
- life reviews and imagineering the next chapter.

What we won't cover in depth: wellness and finances, which are two areas that have already spawned mini-industries to support elders in those areas

John Schuster, MA and Patricia Kane, relative newcomers to Columbus and to the Jung Association, have been married and in business together since they founded the Schuster Kane Alliance 28 years ago. Both certified coaches, they have served a variety of corporate clients, non-profits and individuals, concentrating on leadership development inside organizations, and on living with purpose and balance for individuals.
