BOLLINGEN FUND

The Bollingen Fund was named after the “confession of faith in stone,” as Jung called his tower—the house he built for himself with his own hands at Bollingen. Over the years, as he would begin to feel that the house was incomplete, he would add rooms and courtyards and even an upper story.

Bollingen was always the place where Jung said he felt most deeply himself.

As you may know, a generous anonymous donation has given JACO the opportunity to create an endowment fund. The originator of this fund contributed generously, matching 50 percent of the money donated by our members and friends in the community. This original phase is now over. We are deeply grateful to our original donor, who had the foresight to plan for JACO’s continuing wellbeing, and to all who responded to the call for donations.

We still welcome donations to the Bollingen Fund, which will help ensure JACO’s continued survival over the years ahead. Your donation is tax deductible. Please clearly indicate “Bollingen Fund” and send with your registration or separately to JACO, 59 W. 3rd Ave., Columbus, OH 43201.

Roger Brooke

2008 Bollingen Presenter

Roger Brooke, PhD, ABPP is Professor of Psychology at Duquesne University, and from 1994-2007 was Director of Training in Clinical Psychology. He is on the faculty of the Pittsburgh analyst training program, and is one of three non-analysts to have been elected as an affiliate member of the Inter-Regional Society of Jungian Analysts. He is a Board Certified clinical psychologist with a private practice and hospital consultancy.

He is author of Jung and Phenomenology (1991) and editor of Pathways into the Jungian World (1999). He brings to Jungian studies an original and creative synthesis of phenomenological and cultural perspectives that remain close to experience.

Roger Brooke is an engaging, dynamic presenter who bridges the gap between Jung and contemporary clinical practice.

Friday Lecture, October 3
7 – 9 pm

The Oedipus Complex in Psychological Development
Through the Lifespan

It is well known that Jung criticized Freud for his tendency to interpret the symbolic richness of psychological life in terms of our primary childhood relations. With regard to the Oedipus complex as it shows itself in adulthood, Jung emphasized its symbolic meaning – for example, interpreting incest fantasies in terms of the psyche's inner development. This shift in perspective from Freud to Jung will be discussed.

In addition, Jung's contributions to understanding the Oedipus complex in childhood and adolescence will be examined. It will be shown that Jung has more to say about this than is sometimes imagined. Both optimal developmental conditions and typical difficulties in development will be described, with illustrations from clinical material.

2 CEUs and OPA/MCEs available

Saturday Workshop, October 4
9:30 am – 3:30 pm

The Significance of the Father and Mother in the Development of the Individual

The morning session will include an introduction to the rapprochement that has been taking place between psychoanalysis and Jungian theory in recent years. A Jungian model of infant and child development will be presented, describing the pre-Oedipal and Oedipal processes evident in the first few years of life. Both optimal and damaging early relations will be discussed, and developmental consequences described. The interplay of the personal and archetypal dimensions of experience will be emphasized.

After lunch break, participants will have an opportunity to reflect on some of the images and memories in their family histories. With a Jungian sensibility, participants will be led to the archetypal significance of these experiences in the constitution of their psychic lives. Among the themes we might visit: attachment and separation, light and dark, psychic flexibility, gender identity, authority and death.

While there will be opportunities for sharing personal information, no one will be required to do so.
